

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Cooking can be an adventure!

Learning Outcome

Describe complicated or unusual events in the past through a wider range of B1 language in both work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about food and how to prepare it.
- I can make suggestions and offers of help.
- I can explain my opinion.

Ask your partner:

- Is cooking easy or difficult for you?
Why?
- If you were cooking with a friend this weekend, what would you like to try?

Let's Explore!

Sally took a painkiller, so she's a bit loopy.

* A "painkiller" is medication you take after you are hurt to stop the pain.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Okay, I suggest that you sit there while I go on with dinner.
- Sally: I can throw out the onions and wash the cutting board.
- Vanessa: You should use these rubber gloves while you're doing that.
- Sally: I can doodle some ideas for your booklet while you're cooking. We could put some of your words of wisdom in the steam coming from pots.
- Vanessa: You mean like always cut away from you.
- Sally: I don't think that we can get out of using that one!
- Vanessa: I absolutely agree with you. I'm pretty sure that you could get into telling better anecdotes for a booklet than I could.
- Sally: I'm certain that you know much more about how to get through a recipe than I do. Like: Boil the rice! Mash the potatoes! Grind the pepper! Then some chives can be sprinkled on the salad!
- Vanessa: I believe that you are trying to get away with mocking me, Sally!
- Sally: It's quite obvious that I revere your cooking skills when you get down to it. So, I'm just trying to be funny.
- Vanessa: Did you take a painkiller? You sound a little loopy! Have some orange juice!
- Sally: I'll just sit here. You talk.
- Vanessa: Okay. The spices should be chopped up so the rice will smell and taste nice. Some sunflower seeds can be roasted to toss in later.
- Sally: I'm so happy you can salvage dinner. I'm starving!

Let's Practice!

Can you prepare that?

Instructions: Read dialogue and circle all the modal verbs and imperatives.

Vanessa: Did you take a painkiller? You sound a little loopy! Have some orange juice!

Sally: I'll just sit here. You talk.

Vanessa: Okay. The spices should be chopped up so the rice will smell and taste nice.

Some sunflower seeds can be roasted to toss in later.

Sally: I'm so happy you can salvage dinner. I'm starving!

Let's Practice!

Let's read different opinions.

Instructions: Choose the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences.

Word Bank

get out / obvious / think / certain / pretty

1. I don't _____ you are trying to get away with mocking me.
2. It's quite _____ that you know more recipes than anybody else here.
3. I believe that we can't _____ of using onions.
4. I'm _____ that you could get into writing good anecdotes for a book.
5. I'm _____ sure that you have very good cooking skills.

Extension Activity

Food idiom presentation.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- In pairs, research the different types of food idioms, select two and make a Power Point presentation about these food idioms.
- Each student is responsible for presenting two idioms.
- Idioms must contain an explanation of the idiom and an example of how to use it.
- Use a conversation, pictures, or other media to explain the meaning of the idiom.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I research food idioms online.

☐ ☐

I work together with a partner to explain selected food idioms in a clear and concise manner.

☐ ☐

I present my idioms to the class.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to throw out (verb): to reject or discard e.g. I can throw out the onions and wash the cutting board.
- words of wisdom (expression): piece of advice coming from a wise person e.g. We could put some of your words of wisdom in the steam coming from pots.
- to doodle (verb): to draw or sketch something without a specific purpose
e.g. I can doodle some ideas for your booklet.
- steam (noun): the vapor produced by water
e.g. You can see the steam from the pots.
- to call for (verb): to require something
e.g. This job calls for patience.
- anecdote (noun): a personal story of an interesting incident
e.g. I'm pretty sure that you could get into telling better anecdotes for a booklet.
- to mock (verb): to imitate or make fun of someone e.g. I believe that you are trying to get away with mocking me, Sally!
- loopy (adjective): bizarre or crazy
e.g. You sound a little loopy!
- to revere (verb): to feel great respect or admiration for somebody/something e.g. It's quite obvious that I revere your cooking skills.
- to salvage (verb): to rescue
e.g. I'm so happy you can salvage dinner.

Learning Points

Passive Modals and The Imperative to Talk About Food

You use modal verbs to add meaning to other verbs. They come before the dictionary form (Infinitive without 'to') of the main verb. Modal verbs can add meaning connected with certainty or obligation.

You can use modal verbs in the passive voice.

You use the passive voice when you want to focus on the receiver of the action, rather than the 'doer' of the action.

Here is the structure of a passive sentence:

Subject + to be + past participle

For example:

Then some chives are sprinkled on the salad!

You can add a modal verb before the to be.

Subject + modal + to be + past participle

For example:

Then some chives can be sprinkled on the salad!

Here the sentence now has an additional meaning of possibility, thanks to the modal can.

When you are cooking, or talking about how to cook, you can also use the imperative.

The imperative is used when giving directions.

The subject 'you' is understood and left out.

Example:

Boil the vegetables. = You boil the vegetables.

By leaving out 'you' the statement becomes stronger and the focus is shifted to the verb.

Examples:

- The spices should be chopped up so the rice will smell and taste nice.
- Some sunflower seeds can be roasted to toss in later.
- Then some chives can be sprinkled on the salad!
- Boil the rice!
- Mash the potatoes!
- Grind the pepper!

Learning Points

Expressing Opinions

When you express an opinion, you give your ideas on a topic. You can use some inseparable phrasal verbs when you give opinions.

Some phrases we use to give opinions are:

I don't think ..., I'm certain ..., I believe ..., It's quite obvious ..., and I'm pretty sure ...

You use phrasal verbs when you want to be less formal. They are very common in spoken English.

Phrasal Verb	Meaning
get out of	be released from an obligation
get into	be enthusiastic about
get through	continue to completion
get away with	receive no punishment for
get down to	have a good look at

Examples:

- I don't think that we can get out of using that one!
- I'm pretty sure that you could get into telling better anecdotes for a booklet than I could.
- I'm certain that you know much more about how to get through a recipe than I do.
- I believe that you are trying to get away with mocking me, Sally!
- It's quite obvious that I revere your cooking skills when you get down to it.

