Writing Spot: Nurse Vanessa to the Rescue

Learning Outcome

Describe complicated or unusual events in the past through a wider range of B1 language in both work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about injuries and accidents.
- I can make suggestions.
- I can discuss how to deal with problems.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever cut yourself in the kitchen?
- Were you by yourself? What did you do?

Let's Explore!

Sally has cut herself while helping Vanessa prepare dinner. Should the kitchen be off-limits for Sally?

* "Off-limits" means a place where a person should not go.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: You're lucky you were using a sharp knife. A blunt one would have caused a lot more damage.
- Sally: I should have listened to you. Cutting away from myself might have been a better idea.
- Vanessa: One of the first rules of the kitchen ... watch your fingers. The kitchen should be considered off limits for you.
- Sally: Should I be seen by a doctor at the Emergency Department? Then, it would be examined by professionals. There's blood everywhere!
- Vanessa: Let's worry about that later. Why don't you unwrap the towel and let me take a peek.
- Sally: What's the verdict? Is my finger still attached?
- Vanessa: Hmmm ... It doesn't look too bad actually. The cut's quite long but luckily not very deep.
- Sally: I can't look. It's making me nauseous.
- Vanessa: The wound should be cleaned with some antiseptic. I think I've got some upstairs in the bathroom.
- Sally: You could grab me a couple painkillers too, if you've got any.
- Vanessa: Sure. It must be covered with a bandage, too. It has to be done the right way. The last thing you want is an infection because it should have been protected.
- Sally: Absolutely not!
- Vanessa: Actually, I have some leftover ointment a colleague from work gave me for burns and cuts. It's made with natural products and they swear by it.
- Sally: What's in it?
- Vanessa: I'm not exactly sure. I can grab it while I'm up there.
- Sally: I'll give it a try.
- Vanessa: You should be holding it up in the air. That will reduce the bleeding. Why don't I get you a glass of water? You look a bit pale.
- Sally: I'm OK but I think this is the universe telling me that I should stay out of the kitchen!

Let's Practice!

How should the two girls handle* the situation?

*"handle": "To handle" means to deal with.

Modals for Suggestions and Offers

You can use modals to make suggestions.

You use Why don't we/you/I to make casual suggestions.

You use shall to make a suggestion requesting permission or agreement. Shall is also used in formal situations.

You use could with you/we to show a suggestion as being an option.

You use should to make strong suggestions like advice.

Examples:

- The wound should be cleaned with some antiseptic.
- Why don't I get you a glass of water?
- You could grab me a couple painkillers too, if you've got any.
- Shall I meet you outside the Emergency Department?

Learning Points

Passive of Modals

There are two basic patterns we use for passive modals.

The first pattern is as follows:

modal + be + past participle

This is used to refer to present actions.

Here are some examples:

- can be seen
- should be considered
- would be auctioned
- might be finished
- must be paid

The second pattern is a little longer:

modal + have been + past participle

This is used for past actions.

Here are some examples:

- could have been seen
- should have been covered
- might have been lost

Examples:

- The kitchen should be considered off limits for you.
- It must be covered with a bandage too.
- The last thing you want is an infection because it should have been protected.
