Let's Start!

Let's go to a restaurant event!

Learning Outcome

Describe complicated or unusual events in the past through a wider range of B1 language in both work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about food and how to prepare it.
- I can explain my opinions.
- I can ask for clarifications.

Ask your partner:

- What restaurant or banquet hall events have you been to?
- What type of food did they serve?
- How successful was the event?

Let's Explore!

Vanessa keeps the sultanas in the cupboard.

* A "sultana" is a small light-brown seedless raisin.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: The spicy rice can be made with Basmati or American rice.
Cook: Could you tell me how to know the difference?
Vanessa: The Basmati is more fragrant.
Cook: So you think that we can get by with either.
Vanessa: Yes. The other ingredients can be found in any good restaurant. The cinnamon sticks, turmeric, cardamom pods and cumin seeds ought to be kept in the spice pantry.
Cook: Are they in what you call the dry cupboard?
Vanessa: Yes. The sultanas and cashews might be stored there as well.
Cook: Do you mean they could be somewhere else?
Vanessa: Uh huh ... I guess we could get rid of these dry onions.
Cook: You want me to throw them away?
Vanessa: No, leave them for stock. Was a new bag here when you got in?
Cook: Yes. Honestly, we couldn't get along without a full bag of onions!
Vanessa: I think we have to get on with this. It's getting late.
Cook: Of course!
Vanessa: Fry the onions in sunflower oil. Boil some water. Add the spices. Next pour in the rice. It can be left to cook slowly for about 20 minutes.
Cook: Can you tell me how to know it's ready?
Vanessa: It will be tender and a bit dry. Then toss in the other ingredients and stir in some white wine.
Cook: If you ask me, there's no getting around this one being a real hit!

Let's Practice!

Vanessa is preparing a new dish with some people.

Instructions: Draw a line to match the sentences in Column A and Column B. When you complete the sentences, read the sentences aloud with your partner. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

COLUMN A

1. I don't need more water.
2. I'm not sure we can use garlic or onion.
3. If the rice is salty,
4. Tell me when the other cook arrives.
5. That man doesn't like the rules.

COLUMN B

- a. We need him to get in the kitchen.
- b. He keeps getting around them.
- c. you need to get on with the preparation.
- d. You can get by with either.
- e. I guess I should get rid of some of it.

Let's Practice!

Vanessa's friends have many questions about the cooking session.

Instructions: Circle the correct word to complete the sentence.

1. Basmati and American rice are similar. Can you tell me (how / who / why) to recognize them?
2. After 20 minutes of preparation, can you tell me how to (know / make / low) it's ready?
3. Spices and onions are spread all over the table. Do you know (where / who / were) to keep them?
4. I forgot part of the instruction. Can you tell me what to do (after / often / offer) boiling some water?
5. Where can I keep these things? Do you know what to store in the (cupboard / cupcake / surfboard)?

Extension Activity

What do people want in a restaurant?

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- With a partner, brainstorm 8 elements that a successful restaurant must have.
- Give your list to another group and have them rank the elements in order of importance. One is the lowest and 8 is the highest.
- Exchange your list with a couple more groups.
- Take the results and make a report.
- Give opinions explaining the results.
- Make a short 2-4 minute presentation showing your results.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I set up an independent survey.

☐ ☐

I analyze the results.

Learning Points

Exchanging Opinions

When you express an opinion, you give your ideas on a topic. You can use some inseparable phrasal verbs when you give opinions.

Some phrases we use to give opinions are:

So you think ..., Honestly, ..., I think ..., and I guess ...

You use phrasal verbs when you want to be less formal. They are very common in spoken English.

Phrasal Verb	Meaning
get by	survive
get along	manage
get on	continue
get rid of	throw away
get around	avoid

Examples:

- So you think that we can get by with either.
- Honestly, we couldn't get along without a full bag of onions!
- I think we have to get on with this. It's getting late.
- I guess we should get rid of these dry onions.
- If you ask me, there's no getting around this one being a real hit!

Passive Modals and the Imperative to Talk About Food

You use modal verbs to add meaning to other verbs. They come before the dictionary form (Infinitive without 'to') of the main verb. Modal verbs can add meaning connected with certainty or obligation.

You can use modal verbs in the passive voice.

You use the passive voice when you want to focus on the receiver of the action, rather than the 'doer' of the action.

Here is the structure of a passive sentence:

Subject + to be + past participle

Learning Points

For example:

Spicy rice is made with Basmati or American rice.

You can add a modal verb before the to be.

Subject + modal + to be + past participle

For example:

The spicy rice can be made with Basmati or American rice.

Here the sentence now has an additional meaning of possibility, thanks to the modal can.

When you are cooking, or talking about how to cook, you can also use the imperative.

The imperative is used when giving directions.

The subject 'you' is understood and left out.

Example:

Boil the vegetables. = You boil the vegetables.

By leaving out 'you' the statement becomes stronger and the focus is shifted to the verb.

Examples:

- The other ingredients can be found in any good restaurant.
- The cinnamon sticks ought to be kept in the spice pantry.
- It can be left to cook slowly for about 20 minutes.
- The sultanas and cashews might be stored there as well.
- Fry the onions in sunflower oil.
- Boil some water.
- Add the spices.
- Next, pour in the rice.
